PROGRAM DESCRIPTION

This short 2 hour course is a practical, hands-on presentation to develop the student's knowledge of and responsibilities toward silica exposure. The course develops the competent person's ability to assess their workplace for silica hazards. Using the OSHA Small Entity Compliance Guide, students will create a basic exposure control plan including requirements for employee training, and medical surveillance. The course overviews how and when attendees can and should reach out to get more advanced help.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

- Understanding the health effects of silica
- Knowledge of OSHA's Silica Standard for Construction Industry
- Ability to be a company competent person
- Start a company exposure plan

PRESENTER – Bryan Seal ~ MS, CIH, CSP, CHMM, REHS is the industrial hygiene supervisor for the PA OSHA Consultation Program from the Indiana University of PA. Bryan has more than 25 years of experience in the Health and Safety profession.
